According to a recent study, the purchasing power of the Somali community is estimated to be $800 million annually in the Twin Cities, with an estimated market for products and services of just under $400 million. Our readers consist of people from all walks of life including blue collar workers, entrepreneurs, government workers, military personnel, public officials and more.

Almost half of the Somali population in Minnesota resides in Minneapolis. Just like any other immigrant population, the Somali population tend to live in the same neighborhoods, pray in the same mosques, eat at the same restaurants, go to the same schools and do business with the same companies. That condensed living gives this publication the leverage to reach over 60,000 Somalis with every issue.
